There are some little things you can do to change how people perceive you.

Does meeting new people make you nervous? If so, you're not ___57___. But making a good first impression isn't as hard as you might think. It just involves a few simple choices.

Obviously your appearance influences people's impressions of you. But you don't need to look like a ___58___ to make a good impression. You just need to take care of yourself. Make sure your clothing is clean, not ___59___ and appropriate for the situation. Don't forget little things like ___60___ your teeth, washing your hair and trimming your nails. They change how people see you. The way you stand, sit and move tells others a lot about you. Standing up straight makes you look – and feel – ___61___.

When you approach someone, make ___62___ contact and smile to show you're friendly and interested. Speak loudly and clearly enough so that people don't have to strain to ___63___ you. Listening is just as important as talking. When people are talking, pay ___64___ to what they're saying rather than planning what you'll say next. And if you're not sure what they mean, you can politely ask them to say again. Most importantly, show people you care. Your concern ___65___ them will be evident if you smile and listen carefully.

Everyone you meet is important, and so are you yourself. By following the above tips, not only will you show your best ___66___ other people will also have a good judgment of you.

<1> In the northern half of the world, Midsummer's Day marks the longest day and the shortest night of the year. In England it occurs on June 20, 21, or 22. On this day, many tourists from all over the world gather on Salisbury Plain in southern England. They meet at a circle of giant stones called Stonehenge and see the sunrise.

Stonehenge is a mysterious place that dates back to ancient times. It is known to be about five thousand years old. No one knows who put up the huge stones, and no one knows for sure why Stonehenge was built. The mystery of Stonehenge, however, interests many modern people, and some of them have unusual theories.

Some people say it was a graveyard because some remains of ancient people were found under the ground nearby.

Some people think it to be a calendar used by ancient people. At dawn on Midsummer's Day, if it isn't too cloudy, the sun shines directly through one row of the stones. This fact makes people know that the ancient people who built Stonehenge must have had a deep knowledge of the sun's movement.

The strangest beliefs belong to those who say the stones were put in place by intelligent aliens. However, they disagree about the aliens' reasons for building Stonehenge. Some call it a landing site for alien spaceships and claim to have seen UFOs in the area. Others say it has some kind of magnetic power that was used by aliens for unknown purposes.

Although people hold different views about Stonehenge, it still remains a scenic spot in England.

67. When do large numbers of people visit Stonehenge?
 (A) On various days during the winter.
 (B) On the morning of Midsummer's Day.
 (C) On the shortest day of the year.
 (D) On the morning of New Year's Day.
68. What does the passage say about Stonehenge?
 (A) No certain answer is known why it was built.
 (B) People came from around the world to build it.
 (C) It was built by people who believed in aliens.
 (D) It was built more than ten thousand years ago.
69. People who believe Stonehenge was built by aliens _____.
 (A) have no idea why the aliens wanted to build it
 (B) also believe it was built in modern times
 (C) all think it is a place where spaceships land
 (D) have different opinions about its purpose
70. We know that the people who built Stonehenge _____.
 (A) must have believed in aliens
 (B) were eager to develop the tourist industry

- (C) preferred the sky to be cloudy
(D) knew quite a lot about the sun

<2> English entrance exam in South Korea has been described “super crazy and challenging” by many English-speaking foreigners because it uses a lot of difficult words. But some people argue that people get high scores in that test doesn’t prove his or her comprehensive English ability. What goes wrong?

South Korean start learning English as early as when they are in kindergarten. Parents are willing to spend money on private English education for their children. And many high-school students are able to memorize thousands of difficult words and phrases in preparation for their college exam, known as ‘Suneung.’

But when it comes to speaking ability in the real life, these young people’s tongues get tangled after “hello”. It’s exactly the serious issue faced by South Korea’s English education system--- too much emphasis on grammar and vocabulary, which produces students who may be able to read and write but not speak the language.

There are several reasons to explain this situation. First, since middle school, students have taken the similar test format as the entrance exam. Thus, they have probably learnt several tricks on how to pick up the right answer. Besides, few speaking classes are offered during their studying journey. These problems are responsible for their lacking English speaking ability.

71. In what kind of news page may this article be found?

- (A) Entertainment
(B) Sport
(C) Literature
(D) Education

72. What does “get tangled” mean in the third paragraph?

- (A) To have difficulty speaking fluently.
(B) To speak wonderfully by showing the tongue.
(C) To use very difficult words in the conversation.
(D) To speak too fast to be understood by foreigners.

73. Based on this article, which of the following statements is true?

- (A) The English test in Suneung is friendly to people of all ages.
(B) Korean students are confident in their English speaking.
(C) You can’t finish the Entrance Exam without using tricks.

(D) Even many foreigners can hardly get good scores in the English test in Suneung.

74. According to the passage, which of the following is a better way to make Korean students speak better English?

- (A) To have kids learn English before going to the kindergarten.
(B) To offer more English speaking classes at school.
(C) To make English entrance exam more demanding and hard.
(D) To cancel all grammar and vocabulary questions in the English exams.

<3> Many people think the Nintendo (任天堂) Company originated around 1983, but actually, the Japanese company started in 1889. The company’s first product, handmade playing cards, was very popular. Nintendo soon led the market in playing cards after beginning to produce plastic cards in 1953. But a 1956 trip to the U.S. convinced the CEO that there wasn’t much room for growth in that market, so he began experimenting with other projects, including toy-making. Indeed, the card market began smaller around 1962, and the company tried hard to stay in business.

A wise decision in 1965 to invent mechanical toys helped turn things around for Nintendo. After the company produced and marketed Ultra Hand, they sold over one million units within the first year. They went on to create many electronic toys that helped the company get out of its debt and start making money again.

Nintendo’s Super Mario Brothers in 1985 became a great success. Nearly 62 million units of them were sold worldwide. Success came again in 1989 with another creation, Game Boy, which still ranks as the all-time best-selling portable game system. Nintendo 64 (N64) was released in 1996, selling nearly 33 million units, and receiving Time magazine’s Machine of the Year award. In 2006, the company launched its Wii, which became another huge success. Nintendo successfully looked to a new market: children and people who had never played video games before. Wii’s interactive games, including animated games for kids and sports for the older crowd, offered an all new way to play.

Over the years, the company has faced growing competition and got skeptical remarks about its future. However, Nintendo is still looking forward, making everyone wonder what amazing devices the company will create in the coming years.

75. What is the main idea of the passage?

- (A) To explain the popularity of Wii.
(B) To introduce the history of video games in Japan.
(C) To show the development of the Nintendo company.

(D) To ask readers to buy the Nintendo products.

76. Which of the following is NOT correct?

(A) Nintendo began as a company selling playing cards.

(B) Nintendo also met a business difficulty before.

(C) Nintendo was once the leader in the plastic cards market.

(D) The users of Wii were the same as the players of other Nintendo games.

77. What's the author's thought toward Nintendo's future?

(A) Hopeful.

(B) Negative.

(C) Teasing

(D) Angry.
